Auto Accidents

At Burns, Bryant, Cox, Rockefeller & Durkin, we handle a variety of personal injury claims, but far and away the most common one is injuries as a result of auto accidents. With so many cars and drivers on the road, it's really no surprise. With so many types of vehicles and so many dangerous scenarios, there a lot of ways a crash can happen including:

- Hit and Run Accidents
- DUI Accidents
- Motorcycle Accidents
- Pedestrian Accidents
- Bicycle Collisions
- Truck Crashes
- Aggressive Driving Accidents
- Road Condition Accidents
- Negligent Driving Accidents

What to Do When You Are In an Auto Accident

Even when you practice defensive driving and maintain awareness of your surroundings, there is always a chance that you could be involved in an auto accident.

After an accident you should try to take a moment to inspect yourself for injuries and to check on your passengers. If you or anyone else is hurt, you should call 911. Even if no one appears to be hurt, it is still advisable to seek medical attention after a car accident.

Check on the passengers of the other vehicle(s). If they appear to be injured or are unresponsive, call 911 immediately. Do not attempt to move them unless you believe that they are in danger where they are—if their vehicle is on fire, for example.

Exchange information with the other driver(s). This information should include:

- Driver's Name
- Driver's Address
- Driver's License Number
- Registration Number of the Vehicle
- Name and Address of Each Occupant
- Name of Driver's Insurance Company

It is advisable to make a note of the vehicle(s) make and model, the location of the accident, and the contact information of eyewitnesses in the area. Further, creating your own documentation is generally a good idea. You can use your smartphone or camera to get photographic evidence of the accident.

A copy of the Operator's Report can be found here. It must be mailed within 15 days to the DMV at the following address:

Auto Accident Statistics in NH

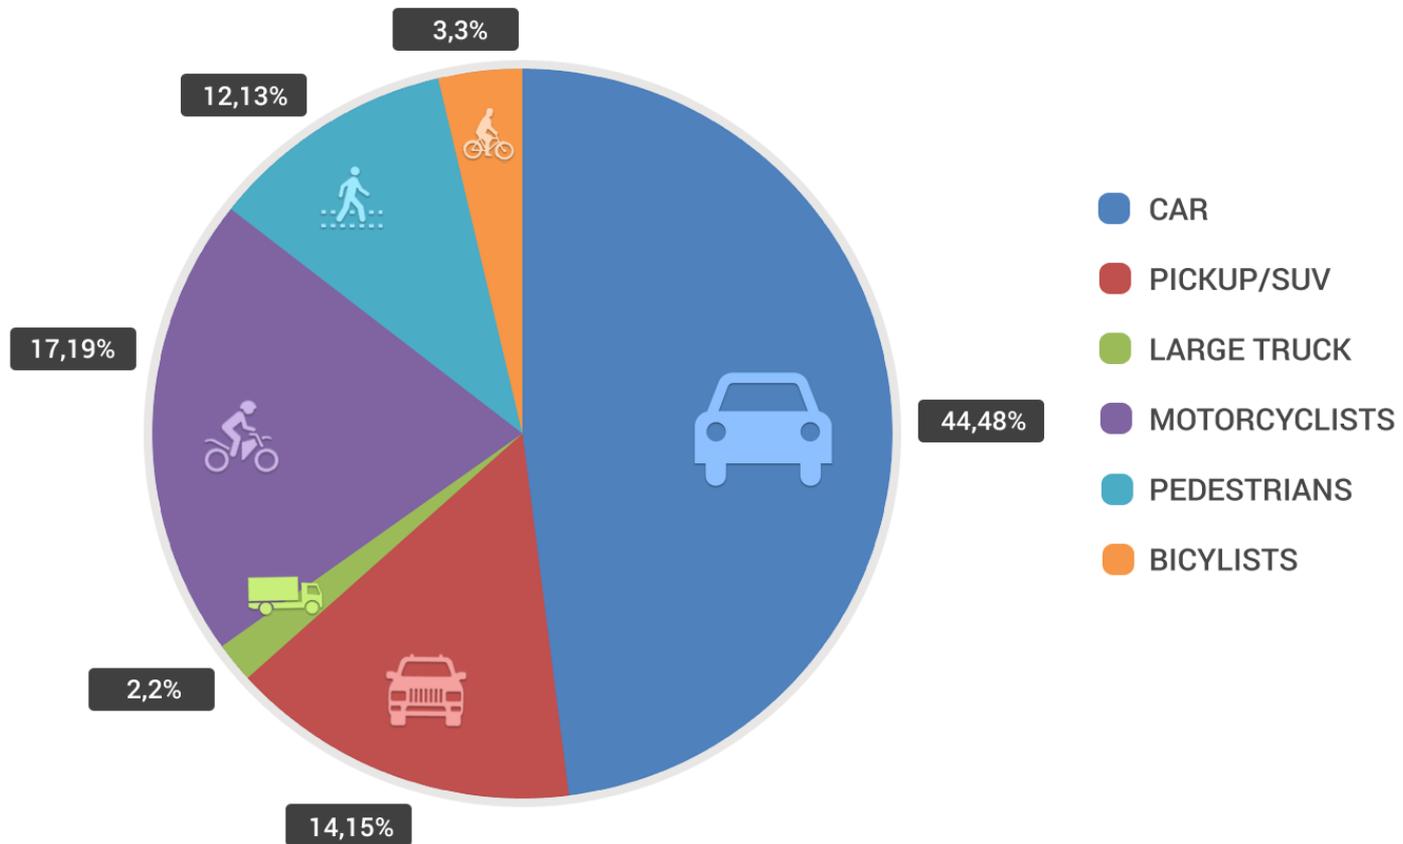

The United States suffered 29,989 fatal car accidents in 2014. As a result, 32,675 people lost their lives. That is 10.2 deaths per 100,000 people, and 1.8 deaths per 100 million vehicle miles traveled.

New Hampshire lost 95 people in 89 fatal car accidents in 2014. Although that is down from 2013's high of 135 deaths, even one life lost is too many.

New Hampshire has a small population relative to other states—only 1.3 million people live here. The crash fatality rate per 100,000 people within the state is 7.2, and the deaths per 100 million vehicle miles traveled is 0.73. In comparison:

- Wyoming has a death per 100,000 people rate of 25.7. The population of Wyoming as of 2014 is 584,153.
- Montana's auto accident deaths per 100,000 is 18.8. In 2014, its population was 1,023,579.
- New Jersey had a population of 8.9 million people that same year. The state lost 6.2 people per 100,000 due to car crashes.
- Washington had a population of around 7 million people. In 2014, auto accidents claimed the lives of 6.5 people per 100,000 in the state.
- Minnesota lost 6.6 people per 100,000. It had a population of 5.4 million people

Robert and Kevin have a great deal of experience as dog bite attorneys, and today we're going to be talking about the importance of photographs in a dog bite case.

Tricks & Tips to Describe an Invention in a Patent Application

One of the biggest problems that inventors face when setting out to describe an invention is with defining what the law refers to as “alternative embodiments of the invention,” or simply “alternative embodiments.” Whenever you read the word “embodiment” in a patent application or issued patent the drafter is merely talking about a particular version of the invention.

The trouble many inventors have is that they don’t understand why they would ever have more than a single version of their invention. They will sometime say: “Everyone would do it this way and include all the features, you’d be crazy not to!” The problem created by this mentality can be enormous. If you do not describe it then it is not a part of your invention. So, for example, if you describe an invention as always having elements A + B + C + D and then someone makes virtually the same thing but leaves D (or any of the other elements out) they couldn’t possibly be infringing. Why? Because the invention was too narrowly described.

1. Why might I need a lawyer to handle an employment-related problem?

To fully enforce state and federal laws protecting employees against illegal actions by their employers, you will need an attorney in many situations where you have a serious problem with your employer and need to take legal action. Most attorneys representing employees do so because they understand that non-unionized employees are relatively powerless against employers.

While you may be caught up in a serious employment dispute only once or twice in your lifetime, some larger employers and their attorneys handle many employment disputes every single day. Most employers have much more experience and resources than you to evaluate and handle claims. An employee who has not consulted an attorney can be at a real disadvantage.

Ropes & Gray's intellectual property group delivers results over a full range of IP services, from rights protection and litigation to licensing and transactions. With more than 230 lawyers and 40 patent agents/technical advisors, our team can tackle any IP challenge, anywhere in the world.

Ropes & Gray's intellectual property practice is one of the most sought-after in the world. OVERVIEW

AWARDS

For over 150 years, our global intellectual property group has provided clients across the world with a broad spectrum of IP services, handling cutting-edge cases, transactions and other strategic matters from six offices in key cities across the United States – Boston, Chicago, New York, San Francisco, Silicon Valley, and Washington, D.C. and four international offices in London, Shanghai, Tokyo, and Seoul. On the ground across three different continents, our intellectual property professionals provide clients with around-the-clock, top-tier IP support on an international stage.

Our IP attorneys are highly educated and experienced across a wide range of industries, including: technology, media and telecommunications; life sciences; retail and consumer products; private equity; financial services; health care; and education. Whether the goal is protecting IP assets, forming a venture, securing capital, developing technology, issuing securities, licensing IP rights or making acquisitions, our IP team stands ready to offer cohesive and comprehensive guidance.

Have Clear Calls To Action (TOFU)

Taking Action in an Auto Accident Lawsuit

The statute of limitations in New Hampshire is three years from the date of the car accident in most instances. This statute of limitations holds for both personal injury and property damage. If you fail to file a lawsuit before the statute of limitations runs out, your case will not be heard in court. Reaching out to an experienced auto accident attorney can help you file your claim in court.

Yesterday's data won't perform today

One huge challenge content marketers face when creating content for a new topic is that it's hard to get any useful data. No database in the world (besides Google's own index) can automatically include everything as soon as it's picked up by the Googlebot, which logically means that things will have lost at least some of their freshness by the time a search database has incorporated them.

Until now.

With the "on-demand brief" feature of the Searchmetrics Content Experience, content planners can now pull up real-time data on any keyword they can think of, replete with all the insights needed to define a fully-fledged content brief. This is what your writers need, not just to create not just great content, but to create content that search engines will love too.

Do User Tests and Use Heat Maps to Improve Time on Site

5. Correct Technical Problems

- Set up a site audit semrush.com/features/site-audit
- Use HTTPS
- Google says: Slow mobile pages start to load in over 2.5 seconds.
- Fix broken links, indexing and sitemap issues
- Fix too long/short/missing/duplicate title tags and meta descriptions
- All 100 of the top 100 domains are mobile-friendly.
- Since not all URLs make use of H2s, Searchmetrics recommends using them for a competitive advantage

Set Up and Use Google Search Console

The screenshot shows the Google Search Console dashboard. The top navigation bar includes the 'Search Console' logo, a user profile icon, a 'Help' button, and a settings gear icon. On the left, a sidebar menu is visible with 'Dashboard' highlighted in a green box. The main content area is divided into several sections:

- 1 New and important: A section with the heading 'New and important' and the text 'No new messages or recent critical issues. View all'.
- 2 Crawl Errors: A section titled 'Crawl Errors' with a sub-section 'Site Errors'. It contains three status boxes: 'DNS' (green checkmark), 'Server connectivity' (green checkmark), and 'Robots.txt fetch' (green checkmark). Below this is a 'URL Errors' section showing '6 Soft 404' and '133 Not found'.
- 3 Search Analytics: A section titled 'Search Analytics' with a right-pointing arrow. It displays a line chart for 'Total Clicks' with a value of 547. The x-axis shows dates from 6/28/15 to 7/16/15, and the y-axis shows click counts from 10 to 40.
- 4 Sitemaps: A section titled 'Sitemaps' with the text 'No Sitemaps' and a right-pointing arrow. Below it is a link 'Why submit a Sitemap?'.

6. Optimize “Supportive” Social Signals

- There is an extremely high correlation between social signals and ranking position, despite Google saying social is not a direct ranking factor.
- Facebook Ads, boosts and groups can get your link worthy content linked to which directly affect SEO.
- YouTube is more “Popular” than Facebook and since videos appear for certain searches, you miss out on those highly visible features if you don’t have videos.
- Journalists love Twitter and more likely interview you if you look alive on social
- LinkedIn Builds thought leadership with a business audience who can share and link to your content.
- Brands rank better and few popular brands do not have strong social.

7. Have a concrete plan for earning links

- The correlation for backlinks remains high, but their importance is set to continue its decline.
- For certain niche topics its possible to obtain a high ranking without a lot of high quality backlinks.

Conclusion

To succeed in SEO and content marketing, you must be able to shift as fast as algorithms do, have a technically proficient website and build real authority, based on content that has insight, not just content to satisfy search engines.

If you have true insight inside you, the rest will fall in line with the right help.
